Dr. Brubaker named dean of Loyola's Stritch School of Medicine
January 5, 2012

Linda Brubaker, MD, has been named dean of Loyola University Chicago Stritch School of Medicine.

Dr. Brubaker has been interim dean since May 2011, when the university’s new Health Sciences Division was established.

A member of the Loyola faculty since 2000, Dr. Brubaker began the university’s Female Pelvic Medicine and Reconstructive Pelvic Surgery Program. Prior to serving as interim dean, she was the senior associate dean for clinical and translational research. Dr. Brubaker is a professor in the department of obstetrics and gynecology, with a joint appointment in the department of urology. She directs the division of pelvic medicine and reconstructive surgery.

Dr. Brubaker earned her bachelor’s degree from the University of Illinois at Chicago and a master’s in clinical research design and statistical analysis from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. She received her medical degree from Rush University, Chicago, where she also completed her residency and fellowship training.

In addition to her academic career, Dr. Brubaker has served as president of the American Urogynecologic Society and the Society of Gynecologic Surgeons. She is an associate editor of the Journal of Female Pelvic Medicine and Reconstructive Surgery and a member of the editorial boards of Obstetrics and Gynecology and Neurourology and Urodynamics.