Dalai Lama to speak at Loyola University next month
March 16, 2012

The Dalai Lama is heading to Chicago next month.

The Tibetan spiritual leader will be speaking about interfaith collaboration at Loyola University on April 26.

The speech is a private ticketed event for Loyola students, faculty, staff and alumni, according to the school’s website.

Many Tibetans consider the 76-year-old Dalai Lama to be their rightful leader.

He fled Tibet to India in 1959 during an unsuccessful anti-Beijing uprising and is reviled by China’s Communist government.
